SkyHawks Gone M.A.D. Award Hawktober 2019

ANDREW FENNER

"Andrew is such a kind individual who has a truly positive influence in my class. He treats everyone as a friend, and he is so respectful to everyone he encounters. He is a good student and a great human being."

"Andrew maintains the highest standards for himself and through his example, sets the tone for underclassmen and peers to follow. He is always willing to help a friend, teammate or stranger to get better and will go the extra mile to ensure their success. He puts their needs above his own and is the person you can always count on to help."

"Andrew is a polite and driven young man. He comes in and visits me daily before school and then during school. We have wonderful conversations about how to be better people and to help others to reach their potential. He maintains a positive attitude despite being injured and still acts as a leader for his class despite his injury. He is helpful, kind, caring, and compassionate. He is always willing to help those who need it and is a very mature gentleman. He has a bright future ahead of him and I cannot wait to see where he makes a difference in his adult life."

"Andrew is a self-made young man that is selfless in his pursuit of others. The first student to school each morning, he is always looking for an edge and finds it through his passion for lifting weights. He gives back to others through his strength of putting others first, and humbly wanting what is best for Skutt Catholic and their SkyHawk community. He is very deserving of this award because of his willingness to help others achieve their goals before thinking of his own. If others succeed, Andrew succeeds."

"Andrew has a quiet demeanor and an old-fashioned sense of humility, one that is simply, quiet pride. He would never brag or even mention the good things he does. This year on CID, my homeroom went to Lothrop Magnet school. When we walked in, students were asking if he was with us. When I inquired about this, I found out that he had been volunteering at the school on his days off from school. The children absolutely love him."

"Andrew is a quiet, humble servant who has an incredible work ethic when it comes to helping others. He balances this quiet humility with an outgoing, positive, and engaging personality in the hallways. Andrew is a friend to all and a positive addition to our school community. On our summer service trip to Guatemala, Andrew spent the majority of the day lifting, mixing, and pouring concrete. This job was physically demanding, but Andrew never tired despite the extreme heat and thin mountain air. The physical impact Andrew made to our work project had an immediate impact on the local community. Each evening, Andrew was able to reflect on his work and his impact, but regularly downplayed his impact and efforts in an effort to remain humble. Andrew is aware of the graces given to him by God and makes sure he uses his gifts to glorify God. The difference he has made in this world and will continue to make is immeasurable."

"He is always positive, takes quiet care of his classmates and himself, and never seeks recognition or accolades. He is exceptionally good and kind, and that's just who he is."
